Frank Redman is one of the Southwest's best and most widely-known golfers. He has won more than 100 golf tournaments since he came to El Paso in 1937 at the age of 13. His more outstanding performances include seven times City champion; Southwestern amateur champion in 1957; co-medalist in the Texas Amateur in 1955; five-times qualifier for the National Amateur; six-times member of the Texas Cup team; amateur golfer of the year in 1967 by Southwest Section of Professional Golfers Association; low sectional qualifier for National Amateur in 1956; low amateur in El Paso (PGA) Open in 1946; tie for low amateur in Dallas Open in 1955; semi-finalist in 1957 Trans-Mississippi Amateur, and Quarter-Finalist in 1949 Western Amateur. He has been extremely active in El Paso Boys Baseball and other local civic affairs. Frank is an insurance salesman with Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company.

JESSE WHITTENTON

Jesse Whittenton first achieved stardom at Ysleta High School where he lettered in football for three years and won honors in track. Sought by many colleges and universities upon his graduation, he chose to enroll at Texas Western College, now University of Texas at El Paso, where he was a four-year letterman, winning All-Border Conference honors and leading the Miners to their only Border Conference title. He played professional football with Los Angeles and Chicago before becoming a fixture in the Green Bay Packers defensive secondary. He was voted All-Pro four times and played on three NFL Western Division championship teams and in four All Pro Bowls. As the highest paid defensive back in the NFL, he helped the Packers win two world championships. An active golfer, he is now part-owner and professional at El Paso's Horizon Hills Country Club.

ROSS MOORE

Ross Moore, one of the more outstanding athletes to attend Texas Western College, has achieved equal fame as a coach and trainer at his alma mater. A four-sport letterman (football, basketball, track and baseball) while an undergraduate, he played professional baseball and coached high school football before "settling" at TWC as an assistant coach and trainer. At one time he was an assistant coach in all sports in addition to his duties as head trainer. He was the head track coach for the Miners from the end of World War II (during which he served in the U. S. Navy until 1966 and was head basketball coach in 1947-48. He has been trainer at UT-El Paso since 1946. He has been honored by the Texas Trainers Association for his training abilities and is in great demand at high school and college athletic clinics and seminars.

FRED CARR

Fred Carr was everybody's All-American in 1967 collegiate football. The big (6-5, 227 lbs.) linebacker climaxed a fabulous career at University of Texas at El Paso by being selected as the first draft choice of the World Champion Green Bay Packers of the National Professional Football League. Quick and agile, Carr was the mainstay of the Miner team which climaxed a highly successful season with an upset victory over Mississippi in the 1967 Sun Bowl game. A native of Phoenix, Carr won three football letters as a Miner and also helped out in basketball his junior year when he averaged 5.6 points per game and six rebounds. Among his All-American selectors were Time Magazine and NEA. Carr was chosen to play in the annual Blue-Grey game with America's other top senior football players.

DON MAYNARD

Don Maynard had his greatest year in professional football in 1967, establishing several new records and being selected to the All-AFL Pro team and the AFL Pro Bowl. A flanker back for the New York Jets since 1960, Maynard has a total of 15 individual records. In 1967 he was the leading yard gainer and third in all professional football in receptions; was selected as the most valuable player on the Jets in 1967 and five times won the "Player of the Week" award. Some of his achievements in 1967 include catching 10 touchdown passes, gaining 1434 yards, leading AFL in average gain per catch and top yard gainer for pass receptions. Now in his tenth year of pro football Maynard, who achieved collegiate stardom at Texas Western College, is hopeful of several more productive seasons.

CHARLIE WEST

Charlie West may be the greatest defensive back ever to play for University of Texas at El Paso. The Big Springs athlete holds the single game interception record (four) and was one of the team's top punt and kickoff return men. Chosen on several All-American teams, he was a high draft choice of the Minnesota Vikings. In addition to his football skills, West has been a standout on the Miner baseball teams and is a much sought-after player by the baseball professional scouts. After the 1967 football season he joined the Miner basketball team and proved to be a valuable reserve. West is now in the enviable position of having to choose between a career in pro football or baseball, and there is a good possibility he might get an offer from professional basketball.

LEE TREVINO

Lee Trevino, voted 1967 "Rookie of the Year" by the Professional Golfers Association, startled the golf world with his accomplishments. The young El Paso professional finished fifth in the U. S. Open, his first tournament on the PGA tour. In the short span of four and one-half months, he won $30,070.42 in official money. A native of Dallas, he turned professional after serving a hitch in the U. S. Marine Corps. He came to El Paso in 1966 as a part-time employee at Horizon Hills Country Club; he is now one of the club owners. Trevino has been tabbed by Gene Sarazen as the best prospect to achieve professional golf stardom since Jack Nicklaus.

CHARLES H. LEAVELL, SR.

Charles H. Leavell, Sr. achieved fame for his athletic and academic records at the University of Texas before becoming one of the outstanding golfers and sportsmen of El Paso shortly after the turn of the century. A veteran of the Spanish-American War with the First Texas Infantry, he moved to El Paso in 1902 where he became El Paso Country Club, City and Southwestern golf champion. He served as director and president of the Southwestern Golf Association, president of the El Paso Country Club and was active in other sports organizations. His interest in civic activities led him to the presidency of El Paso Chamber of Commerce, El Paso Real Estate Association and the Gateway Club; he served as a City alderman. In addition to his fondness for football and golf he was an ardent hunter and fisherman. He died November 13, 1936.
